DECEMBER 23, 2013, ELECTRONIC CASE MANAGEMENT PROTOCOL ORDER

On August 29, 2012, the Court entered its Electronic Case Management Protocol Order, with an effective date of September 10, 2012, to simplify the electronic case filing (“ECF”) system in Automotive Parts Antitrust Litigation. In March 2012, the Court amended the ECF procedures to delete the letters appearing in the case numbers of the first six parts and replace them with the numeral 2 and to assign numbers to newly added parts. Because numerous parts have been added as well as other types of lawsuits, the protocol is amended as follows:

1. The “Master Case,” 12-md-02311, includes all cases involving automotive parts antitrust actions that are transferred to the Court by the Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation (“JPML”) or otherwise consolidated or coordinated with other matters before the Court under the Master Case, 12-md-02311.

2. The Master Case includes “Lead Cases” relating to specific parts. The Lead Cases are designated by a five digit number: the first three digits are associated with the particular part; the last two digits—00—reflect that the case is the lead case.

3. The Lead Cases include “Class Cases” for each particular putative class of plaintiffs and also include “Miscellaneous Cases” that do not fall within any putative class. The inclusion of Class Cases and Miscellaneous Cases in each specific part may only reflect a place holding function and will be populated if and when an individual case falling into the designation is filed.

4. The Class Cases include the following:

Direct Purchaser Action, designated with the last two digits–01;

Dealership Action, designated with the last two digits–02;

End-Payor Action, designated with the last two digits–03.

5. The Miscellaneous Cases include the following:

OEM plaintiffs, for example, Ford Motor Company, designated with the last two digits–04;

State Attorneys General plaintiffs, such as the State of Florida, designated with the last two digits–05.

6. Within each Class Case or Miscellaneous Case, there will be individual member cases referred to as “Individual Cases.” These are the originally filed individual complaints that will retain the originally assigned case numbers. Accordingly, the cases will be organized as follows:
